TO

OUR FATHERS

WE. THE SENIOR CLASS OF '27, DEDICATE THIS, THE FIFTH VOL-TIME OF THE "OAK" TO OUR FATHERS, WHO HAVE EXPRESSED THEIR LOVE AND HOPES FOR US IN THEIR WILLING SACRIFICE NOT ONLY OF MATERIAL THINGS BUT ALSO OF THINGS OF GREAT-ER VALUE, IN ORDER THAT WE, THEIR UNDESERVING DAUGH-TERS. MIGHT HAVE EVERY OPPOR-TUNITY FOR BETTERING OUR LIVES. MAY WE NEVER FAIL THEM, BUT ALWAYS LIVE UP TO THEIR IDEALS OF WHAT IS GOOD, TRUE, AND ALTOGETHER WOMANLY.

THE COLLEGE

College History

X THOSE troubled years which followed the American Revolution, there were very few schools in the South, and little or no desire for them. But in 1786 the General Assembly of North Carolina met and appointed fifteen men of Franklin county, who were to form the Franklin Academy. Major Brickell gave the land; and the first building, a two-story wooden structure, was erected across the street from where the college now stands. Its first president was Matthew Dickinson, a worthy man, and a graduate of Yale. He resigned after serving three years, and was succeeded by Mr. Bobbitt.

In 1802 the female department was added with a fee of only $16,00 per year, under the supervision of Mi.s Partridge. She soon married Mr. Bobbitt, and under their guidance the college made an enviable name for itself.

Thus for many years Louisburg College struggled on, its sole hall of learning being an old two-story wooden building which is now called the Annex, until in 1857 the Main Building was erected and formally opened.

Mr. Southgate safely guided our Alma Mater through the Civil War, and the end of conflict found her standing unharmed, her majestic pillars raised in triumph to the sky. Days of trouble followed. At times it seemed as if she must truly fail. Prospects were dark indeed when she almost passed into the hands of a race other than our own color. But fate willed it otherwise, and Louisburg continued unmolested on the path of female education.

The year 1891 marked another important milestone in the history of our college, for it was during that year that she was deeded over to our own Washington Duke, whose son, Benjamin Duke, gave Louisburg into the care of the North Carolina Conference at the death of his father in 1907.

It was after the conference took charge that the Davis Memorial building was erected, and modern heating devices were installed.

In 1915 Louisburg entered into her own when she took her rank among the first Junior Colleges of the South, pronounced and recognized as such by the General Board of Education.

Louishurg College has had a glorious past, but a still more glorious future awaits her if our dreams and labor bear fruit. In 1922 the Board of Trustees was extremely fortunate in securing Mr. A. W. Mohn for the presidency of Louisburg College. In years to come it will be impossible to think of the college without thinking of Mr. Mohn, for it was he who not only dreamed dreams of a greater college, but realized them. In 1917 there were only Main and Davis Buildings. Today, 1927, thanks to Mr. Mohn, there are many additional improvements. In 1924, West Wing was completed, and Main Building was completely remodeled inside. In 1926 Wright Memorial Dormitory, a building donated by our henefactor, Mr. R. W. Wright, in memory of his sister, who was a student at Louisburg, was completed. This year Franklin County Building, a perpetual monument in brick and mortar to the Franklin County people who responded so gallantly to the call of Greater Louisburg, is under construction; and hopes are high for the beginning of our Fine Arts Building, to be placed down the hill opposite Wright Building. It is our dream, our hope, our prayer that 1937 will see the absolute completion of the stupendous program being enacted for our college. When our plans are completed, the college will cover twice the area she now does. There will be a chapel and Fine Arts Building, which will correspond in position to Wright Building. Just back of Main Building the Gymnasium and Infirmary will be erected. Also, oh, joy to the teachers, there will be teacher's cottages scattered about the campus! Just back of the Gymnasium and Infirmary there will be Tennis Courts, a track field, and modernly planned and equipped grounds for women's athletics.

This dream of our greater Alma Mater is no longer just a dream, but it has developed into a state of reality, for campaigns are being conducted for the acquisition of funds to insure the realization of this dream. Education is ever a prime factor in the welfare of a nation. The people of the South and of North Carolina are waking to this fact. Louisburg College, as she will be ten years from now, will be the result of this awakening, and the fruit of our dreams, labors, hopes and prayers.

O Louisburg, we honor your past, love your present, and hope for your future! May your record of Christian Education never diminish, and as the years roll over your head, may they bring you only greater honor and glory!

LILLIAN WYCHE HOWELL A I K GOLDSBORO, N. C.

Sea Gitt Literary Society, '25-'26-'27, A. W.) A., '26-'27, Dramatic Club, '26-'27, Secretary and Treasurer, Dramatic Club, '27; Tenus Club, '26; Hikers Club '26, Frankin County Club, '25; Communicament Marshal, '26; Literary Editor of "The Oak," '27; Vice-President Senior Cluss, '27,

Lillian Howell, the niece of our dearly beloved friend and trustee, known to all the college girls as "Uncle Frank," has been a part of Louisburg and Louisburg College for a number of years. It is with regret that we see her leave us. So many things can be said of Lillian, as she is prominent in every phase of rampus life, that we are at a loss where to start. On the class, in the Dramatic Club, in our devotional life, on the tennis court, we find Lillian among the leaders.

"Breakfasts in hed; walking the hig heart; moods; romance."

FRANCES PARKER WOODLIEFT $\Delta \text{1 K}$ HENDERSON, N. C.

Neithean Literary Society, '25-'26-'27, Y. W. C. A., '25-'26-'27, Tennis Club, '25, Dramaite Club, '25, Orahestra, '25, Treasurer, Sophomore Class, '25; Sophomore Cher Leader, '25, Y. W. C. A. Societary, '26, Secretary, Student Council, '26; President, Senior Class, '27, Poets sing of inspiration! If the Senior Class was made up of poets, we would all sing of our inspiration—Frances. Indeed, her calm and unruffled capability in the face of sometimes seemingly impossible propositions, is an example to the rest of us in facing our everyday tasks. Her determination is only equaled by her success. If she will, she will, you may depend on't; if she won't, she won't, so there's an end on't. Here's to the Senior's beloved President!

"Snow on a mountain peak; neat notebooks ready to be handed in; conscientiousness."

Beauty, grace and charm certainly form the requisites of a queen. Since Jay has all these, and more, we think that Louisburg College girls could not have made a more suitable choice for their first May Queen. Jay is beautiful, not only in form, but in character. Her constant efforts to help her companions in any way possible have endeared her to the whole school.

"Bits of fairy laughter; the tinkle of silver bells; a bed of pansies."

WINCY ZILLAH BLAKENTY CHARLOTTI, N. C.

Since Wincy is one of the smallest members of the Senior Class, we sometimes wonder where she keeps her vast amount of knowledge stored away. She is always ready with an answer to any question that she may be asked. She has the power of reasoning that seems denied to others, and when she does not know a thing she at once sets herself to the task of learning. Wincy is often called "innocent." Her very expression portrays the sweet and child-like part of the reharacter. Her cheery "Hello" often casts a ray of sunshine in the heart of some lonely girl.

Giggle, giggle, iump and wiggle, Ways, the most contrary; Filled with sweetness, vim and fleetness— That's our little Mary!

Sweet, beguiling, ever smiling— That's her type of being; Always giving joy to living, Sending trouble fleeing.

Though our parting now is starting, We shall ever love her; In our praying we are saying, "Angels, watch above her."

"Jumping jack; rubber ball; shadows dancing in the sun; bits of sunshine peeping through the leaves; Aunt Sally."

No word of ours, no stroke of pen
Can justice do for her;
For when she's near, our wordings then
Become a senseless blur.

These years have given her a place
That others daren't take;
Within our hearts her friendly face
Will e'er its dwelling make.

Old Louisburg's long ancient halls Have never known her peer; Though now the hour of parting falls, Our memories hold her near.

Here's a person of an unusual type—one who knows how to act on any occasion. Habits of culture and refinement have taught her the solution of her problems. She works zealously, yet work does not bother her when she wants to play a little. Wherever found, she will be a happy, care-free person who makes her classmates smile and forget the trials of life. The Athletic Association will miss her, the society will miss her; her triends will miss her, and the College will miss her. Seauty is not what brings success; it is personality and character.

Neithean Literary Society, 266-27, Hikers Cinb, 266-27, Baptist Club, 26, Spanish Club, 27,

Adelaide's quiet spoken friendliness has won for her a lasting friendship of the entire student body. She has a congenial, jolly personality and always meets everyone with a smile—a smile that might win the love of any man. Men, however, are the least of her thoughts; so we are expecting her to have a career of her own. Adelaide is often seen walking around carrying a book, and talking about how much work she has to do. She always does her best, too. We are proud to claim Adelaide as a class-mate, and we wish her success in everything she does.

"Lou" is so quiet and reserved that one may pass her many times before realizing how rare and sweet are her tender ways. But like a modest flower growing among its green leaves, the pertume of her sweet spirit slowly spreads about her. Always loyal to the old class of '27; always ready to stand by a pal in distress; always measuring up perfectly for "Every day's most quiet need." No one ever fears that Lou will fail us.

"Gentle Southern breezes; wistaria on a trellis; curling irons."

RUBY ONETA DAIL.

Sea Gill Literary Society, '26-'27; Y. W. C. A., '26, 'Hikers Club, '26, Temms Club, '26, Physident, Student Government,

Although Ruby doesn't talk much, what she says is always to the point. There are a few women left in the world who can always mind their own business, and here is one of those found on our campus. She possesses many characteristics that are too numerous to name, but if one is very interested, ask "Buck." He can tell. Even if student government duties occupy thought and time, there's enough space left in her heart to listen to a friend's appeal, especially that of one firm and true; good-hearted and sincere; hon est and loval; and a sport in all of college activities, we find Ruby a person whom all students on the campus know.

"Flying fingers; practicing; black and white ivery keys; student government meetings."

Not a dual personality; not a Cesario and Viola in one; nor even a Rosalinde and Ganvinede; but more is found in Eula. She can play a Portia and plead for mercy till you grant her cause at any cost. She can love as Ophelia and fade like a lovely flower; or she can assume the passionate bravery of Juliet, and die in a tomb for her love, unatraid; she can clasp death to her heart as did Cleopatra, and wait its coming with calmness and serenity. Indeed we look for her appearance on the real stage of life as an event that will reflect honor and even fame on the class of '27!

"A strain of waltz music; play rehearsals; Charlie; telegrams."

When one thinks of truth and kindness, one always thinks of Lucilie. She is always ready to help. Such a kindly way she has, surely, if in after years, the halls of old Louisburg College could reproduce the calls of those in distress to "Cille," they would re-echo with her name above all others. And just one deep look in to her clear, brown, honest eyes makes us all believe her, no matter what our question may have been. First in fun, first in friendship, first in fine purpose to do her best, Lucille.

"Silver candle sticks; lace shawl; blue sky, grey ocean."

Neithean Literary Society, '26-'27; Hikers Club, '26-'27; Tennis Club, '26-'27; Dramatic Club, '26-'27; Spanish Club, '27.

If we only had more girls like Lyndsay here, our school in general would be greatly elevated. Her ideals have no end. She has her wagon hitched to a star and she will be very likely to reach her goal, considering the excellent qualities which she possesses. Lyndsay never shirks her duty, and she has meant much to her class. She has many friends who are expecting to hear great things of her in future life.

"Mystery; blackest night; Lady Macbeth."

CATHERINE CORDELIAH THOMAS MAYSVILLE, N. C.

Sea Gift Literary Society, '26-'27; Y. W. C. A., '26-'27; Home Economics Club, '26-'27.

Catherine sees the bright side of every condition, and makes trouble appear small and insignificant. Her good humor often helps to drive the blues away and a person very soon joins in the fun and forgets worry when in her presence. Her friends predict for her a great future, but they can't tell exactly what her life's work will be. However, as she is taking a Home Economics course, and as her daily letter is postmarked Wake Forest—well—you know, we wonder. But so would you.

"Big, fat letters; eternal good cheer; caramel fudge."

INEZ MARTLE CHADWICK GLOUCESTER, N. C.

Sea Gift Literary Society, '26-'27; Y. W. C. A. '26-'27,

Inez is one of those cheerful persons with never a frown on her cheery countenance, who makes life pleasant for everyone. Inez is studious, but she manages to find time for school activities. That fine, clean sportsmanship which she manifests in everything she does, shines forth in her studies and in her student life. Inez, you are true blue!

"The roar of the surf; white beaches and gleaming sands; marsh land."

EUNICE THERESA BUTTS 240

MOUNT OLIVE, N. C.

Home Economics Club, 226-27, Neithean Society, 226-27,

Eunice is lovable, and for this reason she is loved by all. She is a favorite among the teachers as well as among the students, for she is very ambitious and studious; and exceedingly talented in the musical world. Pep? Just call on Eunice when attacked by a severe case of the blues, and suddenly as if by magic all worries are forgotten. She is the same to everybody and at all times. Yes, true blue—that's Eunice.

"Chewing gum; lolly pops; feasts; a Ford coupe."

LUCY CLITTON BODDLE LOUISBURG, N. C.

She is known to her friends as "Cush," and lucky is the girl who has earned the right to call her that. Cush quite often makes us marvel at the almost inexhaustible capacity of her brain for storing knowledge. She is quite a neat housekeeper, for she keeps her facts arranged in perfect order—never jumbled; and on examination day she brings them out for an airing. And then—oh! how we envy Cush!

"The sweet, solemn silence of the hills; clear spring water; wood fern."

GRACE LELA WINDLY A Ω Φ SWAN QUARTER, N. C.

Neithean Laterary Society, '26-'27, Hilo is Club, '26; Tennis Club, '26, Y. W. C. A., 26-'27.

Do you remember the story of the ugly duckling that became a beautiful swan? We don't know if Grace was an ugly duckling, but we do know that she came to us from Swan's Quarter, and that we only need to look at her, and say that Swan's Quarter must be a desirable location. We have heard, too, of the swan's song. Grace doesn't always find life a sweet song, especially when that song must be transcribed into french phonetics. Nevertheless she has acquired a certain french manner of making pretty speeches that has won her many triends.

"Balls of grandmother's day; a pink rose in fair hair; trailing arbutus; swans,"

MARY ISABELLE WEST WARSAW, N. C.

Sca Giff Literary Society, '26-'27; Treasmer Son Giff Literary Society, '27; Y. W. C. A., 26 White Cat Club, '27; Tennis Club, '26, Spanish Club, '27

Isabelle, with her dark eyes and hair and the soft glow of color in her cheeks, never tries to call attention to herself. She is more concerned with the welfare of her classmates than her own. Always she is trying in some simple, kindly way to help another. She is always working faithfully, always living loyally. If there's ever a question of the real rewards of life, they'll surely go to her, for the reward of the faithful is certain.

"Psychology class; sunny Spain; raven's wing."

BERTA LILLIAN JONES

Neithean Literary Society, '26-'27; Y. W. C. A., '26-'27; Hikers Club, '27,

Here's to the girl who works and works and keeps smiling in the face of it all. She makes good marks on her subjects, and is always ready to try anything to help Louisburg College. She is quiet and unassuming, but she has proved one of the most loyal students of the Senior Class. One would have to go a long way to find a truer and better friend than—"Bert."

Perhaps Eva Belle could never be accused of having quantity—quantity of size—but no one can deny that she has quality. It is evinced in her school work, in her social life, in her student activities; in fact, in everything with which Eva Belle is concerned. In trying to say something of her, one feels keenly the inadequacy of mere words; so—it you want a true friend, a lively pal and a serious companion all in one, seek Eva Belle.

"Men, men! How I adore them!" She is a lively energetic girl, who is always optimistic. At school, she always knows her lessons—however, she does not believe in studying too bard. Perhaps, we don't all know Martha Bagley as well as we would like; but among those whom she has chosen for her companions, she is certainly popular. As one of our beloved school churns, we wish her a life of success,

MABEL FRANCES BRADSHER HURDLE MILLS, N. C.

Neithean Laterary Society, '26-'27; Person County Club, '26; Y. W. C. A., '26-'27

Mabel hails from Person County. She entered College here in 1925 and since then she has won for herself many friends by her kindly attitude toward everyone and everything. She is a good example of "persistence" and with this quality, we know her reward will be worth while. But we must not torget that she is a devoted lover of "Home Sweet Home," and we are sure that she will fill her place there.

"A stick of peppermint candy; toy balloon; fun and dimples."

It luck doesn't go your way, it's hard luck, Sweetness personified! I hat's Mary Frances, as long as luck is going her way. But when it goes some other way she "weeps alone." Accommodating? She's always ready to lend her last nickel or to go up the street. She's a good loser as well as a good winner. If she flunks an exam she keeps on trying. Really she's a right good pal.

Clyde's cheerful disposition and ever ready smile added to being an excellent student make her a very popular and attractive Senior. We are wondering if she will twilt traffic in a bungalow or be a long-nosed "lady in waiting" school marm? But we know that she will be a success in either one.

Just the barest acquaintanceship with Margaret is needed to feel her charm. There's just something about her that is irresistible. She draws people to her without the least bit of effort on her part—even her worst encies, it she has any cannot deny her permeanal magnetism. Margaret believes in being hospitable and she loves companionship. She is always having guests at her home, or cayorting around in his car.

Sea Gitt Literary Society, '26-'27; Tennis Club, '26; Hikers Club, '26; Irraniate Club, '26-'27. Secretary of Spanish Club, '27; Vice-President of Person County Club, '26.

Anne's personality is such that she makes friends easily—much to her credit. Her favorite pastime is sleeping, for she had much rather dream about her work than do it; but she has always managed to maintain a good standing. We were afraid once that Anne was going to leave us and launch her boat on the Sea of Matrimony, but now we think she has determined to be a school marm for one year at least. We are for you, Anne, throughout life.

"Pale moonlight on the river; romance; yellow butterflies."

ALLEEN MAY

Sea Gitt Laterary Society, 127. Raptist Club, 127. Dramatic Club, 126; Y. W. C. A., 126.

Alleen has made many friends during her two years at Louisburg College, and she has done it in such a quiet easy going manner that we all wonder how she manages to do it. To any one who is capable of appreciating the reality of genuine character, the friendship of Alleen will be a treasure. Alleen says that she is going to be a school teacher, but even school teachers are susceptible to the darts of Cupid, you know! We know that even as Alleen is now leaving many friends, she will always find them wherever she goes.

"Suffragette meetings; seriousness; ancient wolumes of leather-bound books."

Petite? Yes, but in size only, for Doris holds an especially large place in our hearts. Each small task assigned to her receives great consideration and we find her always equal to the necessary needs. Versatile? Yes, for outside of being near the head of all her classes, does she not hold us spell-bound with thar certain quality in her voice that one thrills to as at the plucking of a 'cello string? Beloved? Certainly! For she believes that the only way to have a friend is to be one.

"The quiet solemnity of a church; the beauty of the sun shining through the stained glass acindozes; the soft tones of an organ."

LINA ELIZABETH WILSON DURHAM, N. C.

Sea Gift Literary Society, (26-'27) President, sea Gift Literary Society, (27) Y. W. C. A., (26)

Only once in a while is a college fortunate enough to own a girl like Lina. She is truly one of the "best all around" girls in the class or on the campus. She has ability, she has dignity and she has charm. You can depend on her to take her place wherever and whenever she is called upon, for she is both reliable and prepared. She plays, she sings, she talks and she has won distinction as a leader. You'll find her taking part in all phases of outdoor life, too. Her host of friends who love her dearly, wish for Lina all that the gods decree to bestow on a lovely woman.

MARIE ELIZABETH HESTER HURDLE MILLS, N. C.

Sea GHr Literary Society, '26-'27; Y. W. C. A. '26-'27, Person County Club, '26; Hikers Club, '27,

Marie's smiling face and unintentionally witty remarks always keep us in a good humor. Although her studies employ a large part of her time, she is always ready to stop and tell a joke. Marie is a good-natured, congenial, carefree girl, who has made many friends here, and we are sure she will continue to make them throughout life.

When Nannie breezed into the Davis Building, she brought with her a radiant countenance which helped to cheer up and make bright all the corners of the beloved hall. Her gentle, unselfish influence immediately won for her a place in our hearts. She has been a diligent student, yet not a book-worm. She has found time throughout her college career for the religious, social and literary activities of the school. We found Nannie to be friendly toward others and ambitious for herself. Sometimes she is moody, sometimes joyful, but she always stands for the things that are true and altogether lovely.

"Song of a brown thrush; little brown barelegged girl sitting on top of a rail fence; fields and fields of golden wheat."

Our Frances of the sweet smile and the pretty curly hair, is one of those lucky girls who is loved by everybody. Not only this, but her record in college is one of which anyone would be justly proud. We all feel ourselves richer and better for having known and worked with this girl. We feel sure that her perseverance, her good, clear mind, and her managing ability will carry her to the end of the rainbow.

MINNIE LANCASTER

Home Economies Club, '26-'27; President, Home Economies Club, '26; Franklin County Club, '29

Visit Minnie Lancaster's home, talk with her interesting mother, eat a meal there, and then you will know why she is interested in Home Economics. Beyond making her grades in school, helping to prepare wholesome food for the family, and assisting in the housework, she is interested in all kinds of sports, and especially those which tend to develop one physically. She is friendly, pretty and attractive, and will make the man lucky enough to win her, a charming and lovely wife.

ANNIE DAVIS NOBLE

Sca Gitt Literary Society, 27, Y. W. C. A., 27,

Not only is she Noble by name but of character as well. Annie is quiet, gentle and steadtast. She is faithful to her studies and faithful to her friends. She was a school mistress before she came to us this year, but according to the interest she takes in Home Economics, we think that she will make some home a very good mistress. When the Class of '27 has left its Alma Mater, we will remember Annie by her loyalty and by her pleasant smile.

For two years now, Janie has been one of us; always her quiet, sincere self. Steadily she has forged ahead in our student ranks, proving that real worth, even when unassuming will establish its own value. She studies fearfully; but her keen sense of humor keeps her from ever becoming a grind. She is one of us. She holds the respect of the student body, of the faculty, and of her own pals especially.

Margaret is cheer leader of the college as well as of the Senior Class, and surely no mistake was made when she was elected to this "dignified office." One cannot withstand her contagious pep and enthusiasm. Margaret has been with us three years and we must admit that the future of Louisburg College looks dark without her. Alice was voted versatile, and indeed, she is one of the most well rounded girls of the class. She is efficient in her class work, indispensable for a real jolly good time, and capable in the work of school organizations and athletics and activities. Where ever there is work to be done by an efficient person, Alice is always called on. She has never failed her friends, her school, or her class. Isn't that recommendation enough?

She has the beauty and the personality that have won and will continue to win for her a superabundance of friends. We all love her because she is loveable. Could we ask for a better reason? When we know Nancy, the first impression of loveliness is not dimmed; rather it is increased. Her wit, her attractiveness and her natural sincerity delight those that know her and inspire others to want to know her better. She is and will always be irresistible.

We can only say that we think she is deserving of every praise. She is one of our new Seniors, but we feel that we have known her as long as the others, It is also useless to say that she has won a place in our hearts, for she could not be Alice and still do otherwise. The fact that Georgia likes school teachers is not proof that she will be an old-maid teacher, because she is lively enough to share in our fun when it is time for play. Just because she does not tell everybody her thoughts is not any reason that she cannot be a good friend and sport, but it takes a long acquaintance to know Georgia as she really is. All her teachers find that Georgia never comes to class without preparing her lesson; and during her two years at college, no member of the class has done her duty more willingly.

Senior Class Poem

We go torth, as other comrades, With our eyes fixed on the future; And our hearts go torth with gladness, Tho' our past must lie behind us, Be it blotted or perfected,

Though we've blundered in our efforts, Though we've faltered in our fancies, We go gladly toward that future; Bid farewell to Alma Mater, Lo our blessed Foster Mother,

At her quest, we lift the curtain, Stage the play that she's indicted; All shall see our source of knowledge, Understand our hearts made purer By her standards and her teachings.

All shall see what she has taught us. Do you think we can be worthy, Worthy to be called her children—Children of this famous mother, Bound by love to one another?

Though we're leaving, we're remaining Loyal to thy daily precepts; Loyal to thy sacred teachings; Loyal to thy noble calling, Louisburg, our Alma Mater.

Bless us, mother, as we leave thee; Breathe into us noble purpose; Breathe into us high devotion; Make us lovely incarnations Of thy spirit, great and holy!

Class Prophecy

It day long I had sought anusement, at first one thing and then another. Finally, I decided I would go to the Gypsy camp and ask the fortune genii to tell me of my class mates. A woman dressed in many colors gave me a crystal ball to look in. At first I could see nothing; and then dimly, I could discern the great columns of my Alma Mater. Slowly the picture faded and there stood Frances Woodlieft, our class president. She had her violin in her hand. I tried to speak to her, but could not, as she was talking so hard to some man about the concert that was to be given that evening. She was the company's violinist; Grace Windly was the soloist; Eva Belle Bobbit was the dancer; Anne Woods the reader; while May Green was the one whom they all loved, for she made their costumes and prepared their meals.

This scene changed, and I noticed a sign that read, "Excellent School-Special Training in Math and Spanish." The door opened, and I saw Dorothy Gardner and Lucille Taylor seated at a desk. A mischievous boy stood before them with tears in his eyes. Lucille quieted the child, while Dorothy said in a firm voice, "No matter what the offense, no one is to be campused at this school." The door opened, and two women entered. One of them held a Math book. She was professor of Algebra and was none other than Audrey Midyette. I was so surprised. The other was Elizabeth Thompson, the Spanish teacher. My wonder knew no bounds. I turned the ball again, and there stood Blanche Benson, Janie Fletcher, and Frances Yelverton, presiding over a well-kept kitchen in a modern training camp. I was not a bit surprised, for all of them had been excellent sports and great admirers of the men back at L. C. Suddenly this scene shifted, and there was a court room. I peered closer into the glass and recognized the judge to be Marie Hester. It seemed that the case on trial was this: Two women had stolen the hearts of two men and refused to give them back. The guilty were Sallie Mae Alphin and Minnie Mae Beaman. Their lawyer was Cornelia Frizzell. She pled their case nobly, and won a victory for her classmates. I turned the crystal rather suddenly, and who did I see but Jay Williams and Natt Exum. They were placing in the attractive windows of a small shop a poster that read, "All who desire to learn the secrets of beauty-patronize us." They are wealthy by now, I suppose. Gradually the picture faded, and I turned the glass.

The scene which I saw next took place in a beautiful church. I saw several girls dressed in wedding garments, and upon gazing hard at the crystal, I could discern quite plainly, Ruby Dail, Lucy Cliton Boddie, Marjorie Johnston and Montee Moyle. In front of them stood Mildred Edwards. They had followed her example. In a minute the minister came out to talk to them, and I was much surprised to see that it was Lillian Howell. I turned the glass and saw Alice Averitt, a ballet dancer, giving lessons to Hazel Mann, Isabelle West and Lina Wilson. They were to tour Europe that fall. Margaret Newbern was treasurer of the band, and Eunice Butts was pianist. As I peered at the glass, Alice Poyner, Eula Purnell and Margaret McLeod appeared. They were making a tour of the West and with them were Martha Bagley Yelverton and Virginia Todd. Five vagabonds? As happy and carefree as ever.

The next scene was quite beautiful. Flowers were everywhere. I looked closely and there were Verna Maxwell, Frances Stanton, Vera Usrey and Catherine Thomas, all classmates of mine. They told me that they were in the florist business and that they were sending lavender and white flowers to every member of our class. I thought it was sweet of them; but I remembered that they had always been thoughtful girls. Another turn of the ball, and I could see Adelaide Johnson, Allene May and Minnie Lancaster. All queens of the school room. Miss Guthrie and Mr. Best had not taught in vain, for they were three successful teachers. When the pupils of the control three illustrious teachers were homeward bound, they were taken in large, comfortable trucks driven by Nancy Paylor, Pearl Panton, Mary Frances Respess and Margaret Credle. They explained that they had taken this job in order to train for the Charlotte races, in which they competed each year. Why, what in the world was that? Yes, 't certainly was a car load of brick, but what in the world were Mabel Bradsher, Inez Chadwick and Ruth Watson doing unloading them? I could only guess that they were building a gymnasium, so that the poor girls would not freeze to death while Miss Whitehead called the roll. Just then, Annie Noble came up in a big car to take them to dinner. From her appearance, I presumed that Annie had married a rich man.

This scene vanished, and I saw Lucille Lawrence, Wincy Blakeney, Mamie James Blue and Clyde Johnson trimming hats for the faculty. I noticed that all these brims came down in front, and supposed the reason for that was that they did not want the faculty to see everything that the girls did. Next I saw a tent pitched by a small stream in the woods. I looked closely and there were Nannie Field., Eerta Jones and Louise Joyner. They were out and out suffragists and the reason for their present encampment was the desire to use the freedom they had gained since graduation from Louisburg. But while pondering the situation, three women dressed in blue coat suits, with clubs in their hands came up. These policewomen were Dori. Hancock and, ves, Georgia Coggin. They were checking up on the girls of '27 to see that they were where they should be,

I turned the glass slowly, but all was gone. Fired, but extremely happy, I handed the crystal back to the fortune teller, and left. I went away with the heart of a girl graduate, delighted at the success of my classmates.

Senior Class Song

Years, happy years.

That pass so quickly by:
Two happy years at dear L. C.

Ifter we left old High—

Days full of work, so real and true:

Days full of laughter, yet eft times blue;

But in spite of it all we've all come thru:

Ind we're here with a smile 'midst the tears.

Chums, dear old chums,

Today we gather here

To say good-bye in the same eld way,

Is they said it to us last year.

Perhaps you wish that you were we.

Saying farewell to old L. C.

Yet after all we'll n'er forget

The happy days with you we spent.

Alma Mater, Alma Mater,

To you we'll e'er be true;

As one by one the years glide by,

Our hearts will ever turn to you.

For, mother dear, we'll ever try

To bring more honor to thy name;

As you have shown us every one

The way to honor and to fame.

Years, future years,

That hald so much for us.

Quite eager now we wait for you.

Here on the threshold of our life.

Days full of work, so real and true.

Days full of joy, yet oft times blue—

In spite of all we've all come thru,

And wait we here with smiles for you.

Class History

Of R years ago, though it hardly seems four weeks ago, thirteen trembling girls entered Louisburg College, and haltingly announced themselves as Freshmen. We were truly Treshmen, and although our number was considered unlucky, it did not prove so. We immediately organized our class, choosing for our motto, "Green but growing"; and we have grown! That year might be called a very successful one, even though we did no specific thing to be recorded on our page of history. We managed to pay off our annual debt and we always stood ready to help our sister class, the Juniors.

The next year, seven of our class returned, feeling very sophisticated. Two of the seven had joined the class of '26, but eight new girls were added to our list. This gave us thirteen on roll again, but we were too educated to be superstitious. Elizabeth fluggins was elected president, and Miss Nell Woods, class teacher. They were faithful leaders, and after having sold many gallons of ice cream during the year, we were free from all financial worries at the end.

Last year, four Sophomores returned, proud of the fact that we were really college girls. We were also proud to know that we were no longer a small band of thirteen, but a large class of one hundred and twenty girls. Many of this number belonged to the Commercial Department, but they were claimed as Juniors. Frances Stanton, one of our new members, was elected president, and Misses Nell and Louise Woods class teachers. These very diligent workers helped to make last year a noted one in our history. The three events which took place during the year, and the three which proved to be so very successful, were the Junior Circus, the Junior Follies and the victory over the Seniors in basketball on Thanksgiving day. It was wonderful to feel that we were a step ahead of the Seniors, though we were taken down when they received their diplomas in May. We watched them fervently, our hearts swelling with pride when we realized that our day was very near.

Can it be possible that we are Seniors? We are feeling not altogether as we thought we would feel. Our happiness is mingled with a few tears, and we wish that somehow we could be Seniors next year instead of this year. Fifty-three of our Juniors came back, and six new girls were added to the list. Frances Woodlieff has served as a most efficient president, and our class advisors, Miss Bizzell, Miss Sheek and Mrs. Mohn, have proved to be very substantial crutches on which we often lean.

This year we have had the pleasure of taking part in the dedication of the Pattie Julia Wright Memorial Dormitory, given by Mr. Richard Wright. The dedication services took place on November the twenty-third, a day that we shall never torget. In December we gave a bazaar which was a great financial success. Among the entertainments which we put on was a Gypsy Carnival staged on the campus. It was quite picturesque and different from anything that had ever been given before. Frances Kaspar Lawson, popular American soprano, gave a concert in the College Music Hall in the spring under the auspices of our class.

Now we present our motto and our work at the portals of Louisburg College,

Last Will and Testament

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA COUNTY OF FRANKLIN CITY OF LOUISBURG LOUISBURG COLLEGE.

We, the Senior Class of Louisburg College, having been declared sound in mind and memory, and fully realizing that our time in said College is nearly expired, do hereby make our Last Will and Testament, bequeathing all our worldly possessions to the rightful heirs.

SECTION

Article 1. To our parents we give a promise to endeavor to make our lives beautiful and useful with the preparation that they have made it possible for us to receive.

Article 2. To the faculty we leave our deepest gratitude for the untiring efforts they have made to help us in every way; and we give them credit for the best that our lives shall yield in the future.

Irticle 3. To our Alma Mater we pledge at all times, our loyalty, our devotion, and our service in return for the high ideals with which she has endowed us.

SECTION II

Irticle 1. To our little sisters, we bequeath the fulfillment of the possibility of Greater Louisburg College; the new buildings to be erected, with the esplanade leading from the monument to the main building, the automobile thoroughfares and the various avenues of future advancement.

Article 2. To the class of '28, we give the pleasure and privilege of occupying the new class rooms and especially of enjoying the new library.

Irticle 3. To all the classes which follow us, we give the task of keeping sacred the spirit of our Alma Mater, and to hold high her standards and sacred traditions which have come to us unstained from the records of Old Louisburg College.

Section 111

Irticle 1. To Mr. Mohn, we bequeath a student body who can sing "Alma Mater" with all the vehemence and enthusiasm which he so ardently desires.

Article 2. To Miss Bizzell, we will a class that can intelligently master college algebra.

Inticle 3. To Miss Betts, we will a group of girls who are not given to the excessive use of rouge and lipstick, and who do not walk the dead line while cars are parked near the monument.

SECTION IV

To our benefactor, Mr. Richard Wright, we leave our undying gratitude for his generous gifts to our beloved college; and we pledge to him, so far as we are able, our best efforts to fulfill his ideal of noble womanhood.

SECTION V

To this will, we, the Senior Class of Twenty-seven, set our seal and signature this twenty-fifth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven

Signed: CLASS OF TWENTY-SEVEN.

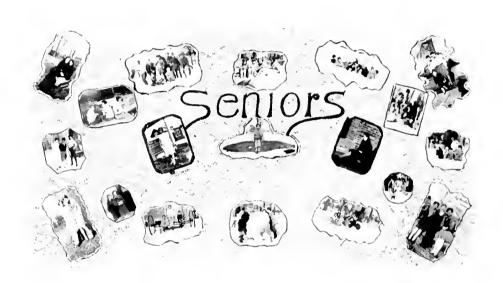

Testator: FRANCES STANION.
Witnesses: CLASS OF 1929.

Junior Class Poem

"Тнат'я Му Дар"

When I was a baby upon his knee He taught me how to give thanks to thee; How to be loyal and true and kind, How the Golden Rule ever to mind— That's my Dad!

Then when I budded, blossomed and grew, He still stuck to me; and I always knew That if I sinned, as long as I live, Me, he would always and always forgive—
That's my Dad!

God, give every girl a Dad like mine; One who is gentle, forgiving and fine, One who knows well his girl's weak way, One who will keep her from going astray— That's my Dad!

A man strong of heart as well as of mind,
A man who knows how to be wonderfully kind,
A man who trusts you through thick and thin,
A spirit to guide you and save you from sin—
That's my Dad!

Women's Fraternities

T IS OUR firm belief that the college fraternity is an institution which is greatly beneficial to the girls within its bounds. It surrounds its young women with a more homelike atmosphere than they would otherwise enjoy. It embodies not only social life, but an earnest endeavor to increase loyalty toward God, the faculty, the student body, and toward self. The fraternity furnishes a strong and lasting link to college life. It is a chain by which the bonds of friendship are strengthened by the bonds of sisterhood.

We have three fraternities at Louisburg—the Delta Iota Kappa, the Sigma Delta Theta, and the Alpha Omega Phi. These fraternities are made up of groups of congenial girls who have chosen to form themselves into secret organizations. They work together, play together, and the spirit of sisterly love exists among them, guiding them to the higher, nobler life.

Jokes

A Freshman went to hades once, A few more things to learn; Old Satan sent him back again, He was too green to burn,

Dot: "Are late hours good for one?" Buck: "No, but they are good for two."

Jay: "Miss Whitehead, can a person be punished for a thing he has not done?"

Miss Whitehead: "Of course not."

Jay: "Well, I haven't done my memory work yet."

Frances: "Eunice, did you read where a man went for two years without taking a bath?"

Eunice: "No, I don't read dirty jokes."

Sarah: "Oh, guess what I did. I made a hundred on two subjects."

Ethel: "How did you rate that?" Sarah: "Just fifty on each."

* * * *
Myrtle: "Mellie, how many subjects did you flunk?"

Mellie: "You mean how many did 1 pass?"

Lucille: "Connie, how do you like to go to the Y. W. C. A.?"

Connie: "All I want is a chance to go to the Y. M. C. A."

Mary D. (discussing her date): "If 'f. B. comes tonight, I just can't see him."

Eva Belle: "No, Mary, you will be sick."

Student: "I am at the very door of flunking. Won't you help me?"

Teacher: "Yes, my dear. I will push you through."

Miss Guthrie was discussing an Education lesson one day, and asked Jay Williams how she liked picture shows and books. The reply was: "I don't like them. I like the real stuff!"

One day in math class Dot Gardner picked up Miss Bizzel's grade book, thinking that it was her college algebra. When Miss Bizzell asked her to put it down, Dot said: "It is blue just like my book." To which Miss Bizzell replied, "That book is blue because it has such poor grades in it." Mae: "What would happen if Miss Sheek's hair turned black?"

Sallie Mac: "She would have black hair, of course,"

While Matt Exom (the prettiest girl) is posing for the front page of the American, Margaret Mel.cod is posing for the Whizbang.

Wincy: "At the end of this year I shall have had ten years of foreign languages. Then I'll be a-a-a-a.

Minnie Mae: "I'd be a lunatic."

Margaret: "There is one thing sure. I did not fall for any boys Christmas."

Mellie: "No, but you stumped your toe several times."

Eula Purnell went to her room. She did not want to study, but she knew she ought to. Finally she decided to flip a coin to see whether she would study or not. These were her terms: "Heads, 1 go to the show; tails, 1 go to bed; edge, I study."

Miss Betts: "Good night, girls. Remember, when I take the light that there will be an angel with you."

Girls: "Couldn't you take the angel and leave the light?"

Miss Betts asked one of her students to make a rhyme. After a moment's hesitation, the student said:

"It's snowing as hard as it can;

Virginia Todd wants James Cooper for her

Martha: "Lucy rides two miles a day for her complexion,"

Blanche: "Oh, is the drug store that far away?"

Miss Guthrie: "Use a sentence containing 'disposition."

Dot Knowles (doubling up her fists): "Jack Dempsey fights in dis position."

The history teacher was explaining to the class one day that some day we shall talk through the air without wires. One of the pupils said. "Won't it be funny to have an operator tell you that the air is busy?"
